G 12

It's six o'clock. I'm the first one up. So I sneak down stairs and open my gifts.

The best gift I ever got was a truck. The first reason I think it's so special is because my dad gave it to me on Christmas morning. When I woke up I looked out side and there it was.

The second reason I think it was so special because right before Christmas dad asked me what I wanted, so I told him that I wanted a truck, and That is what he got me.

The last reason I think it is so special is right after I told him what I wanted. He promised me that he would get me a truck for Christmas.

In Conclusion the three reasons I thought the gift dad got me for Christmas is. That dad gave it to me on Christmas morning, and he promised me that he would get it for me, and last is that he gave it it me. Now that I've told you my best gift you tell me what your best gift is.

Score Point: 3

This response reflects a limited degree of proficiency in expository writing skills. The response has an effective organizational structure and an original introduction. The writer attempts to cite three reasons to support the selection of a truck as a favorite gift (my dad gave it to me on Christmas morning, he promised he would get it for me, and he gave it to me). The distinction between reasons is unclear because of inadequate development and explanation of key ideas. The conclusion repeats the three reasons. Although some writing errors are present, they do not interfere with meaning. Further development is needed for a higher score.
